A COMMUNITY GARDEN

At the beginning of the second term, the pupils of Bright Future Primary School noticed that an empty piece of land near their classrooms was covered with rubbish and weeds. Their English teacher, Mrs Nansubuga, suggested that they turn it into a vegetable garden. The head teacher agreed, provided that the pupils worked safely and did not miss their lessons.

Every Friday afternoon, the gardening club met for one hour. Some pupils collected rubbish while others loosened the soil, made garden beds and planted seeds. The school caretaker showed them how to use hoes carefully and how to water young plants without washing away the soil. The pupils planted sukuma wiki, beans, carrots and onions.

After several weeks, the garden became green and healthy. The pupils recorded the plants' growth in a notebook. When insects damaged some leaves, they asked the agriculture teacher for advice instead of spraying unknown chemicals. At harvest time, the school kitchen used some vegetables for lunch. The rest were sold to teachers, and the money was used to buy watering cans and seedlings.

The project taught the pupils teamwork, patience and responsibility. They also learnt that a clean environment can provide food when people plan carefully and work together.
